Good News Everyone likes to read it. If you think of buying a diamond solitaire, see that little store with the large business and high reputation for honest dealing for 40 years. I tell you the truth. I have no bargains in diamonds. There are none in existence. But I offer only fine quality at a small profit, according to my expenses. Seeing is believing.

CHEAPER and better than wood. More durable, will not split or crack. "Knocked down" 90 Corrugated Boxes can be stored in the space one wooden case of the same size would occupy. Easier to pack, lighter to ship, contents arrive in perfect condition. No nailing, hammering or sawing. Dirt and damage proof. Freight and express charges decrease when you use Corrugated Board Boxes. For Parcels Post packages nothing equals it. Let us estimate on your requirements and submit you samples. Why Every Business Man Should

BE A MEMBER

OF THE

Board of Trade

OF THE

City of Newark

BECAUSE it is representative of the industrial, commercial, financial and professional life of the City.

BECAUSE it is an educational force in the community exerting the influence of its combined membership for the improvement of industrial conditions and for the betterment of the municipal affairs of the City.

BECAUSE it insures stability of government in city and state affairs and serves as a bulwark in protecting the invested capital of business men and its protective strength has a value equal to insurance against liability.

What Commercial Organization Means

President Roosevelt stated that: "Boards of Trade were the eyes and ears of the business world. That the resolutions of such bodies are the thoughts of today and become the laws of tomorrow."

Mayor Haussling stated that: "It is not exaggerating to say that the most important measures adopted by Newark within recent years have originated or received their strongest impetus from the Board of Trade, and that the Board has always stood as a bulwark against attacks upon the public rights and welfare

What the Board of Trade is Advocating

1. An appropriation from Congress of $2,500,000 for the building of a "New Post Office" adequate to the needs and wants of the Newark Postal District.

2. Action by the Interstate Commerce Commission to readjust freight rates by doing away with the free "Lighterage Privilege" in New York Harbor, the maintenance of which imposes an embargo of three cents per one hundred pounds on all freight shipments received or shipped from North Jersey points.

3. The development of "Newark Bay" as a seaport which involves the removal of the present Bay Bridge of the Central Railroad Company, the securing of an appropriation from Congress for the deepening of the channel from twenty feet to thirty feet and the widening of the channel to one thousand feet by the cutting of another channel along the west shore of the bay.

4. To bring about "Greater Newark" through the annexation of adjacent suburban cities and towns is essential to the proper development of public works and to make Newark the seventh greatest city in the United States.

5. The adoption of a plan in connection with public education for the teaching of "Vocational and Industrial Training" in co-operation with the various lines of industry carried on in the workshops of Newark.

6. The creating of an influence throughout Northern New Jersey in favor of "Patronizing Newark Merchants" with the object of increasing our commercial trade.

7. Preventing fraudulent plans of promoters of schemes involving contributions, subscriptions or purchase of tickets which are imposed upon the business public, through the co-operation of business men with the "Endorsement Committee" which serves three purposes: (1) saving the time of business men, (2) preventing a loss of funds, and (3) directing contributions for the support of worthy purposes or charities.

8. Preventing the enactment of "Legislation" which would harass industry or impose burdensome conditions upon manufacturers or merchants, or add additional tax on the public; also securing the enactment of legislation for the benefit of protecting of manufacturers or merchants by the Legislature or Congress.

9. Acting as an "Insurance Safeguard" at all times, ready on call to respond when desired to advocate or protest where such action will be for the benefit or protection of the commercial or industrial interests of the City.

10. In preventing "Municipal Extravagance" or adverse legislation the value of the Board of Trade to every business man is equal in every way to the protection afforded by liability insurance. It is as reasonable to do away with such insurance as to fail to be enrolled as a member of the Board of Trade.

NEWARK'S

250th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

By HENRY WELLINGTON WACK

EXECUTIVE ADVISOR

COMMITTEE OF ONE HUNDRED

THE intent of Newark's finely conceived celebration from May to October 1916, was even more significant than its forms and ceremonies. Newark began to realize herself, as youth merging into maturity. As the life of American cities is measured, Newark was not very young. Yet she had gone forward rather slowly and conservatively for two hundred years before the impulse to greater attainment and more virile attributes impelled her onward toward the meridian of her present physical stature of 400,000 citizens and a progressive government.

During the summer of 1914, when the city was within sight of her 250th birthday, her Mayor, Hon. [illegible], a man of acute perception and active political loyalty to the city's welfare, appointed a committee of its leading citizens to undertake the collection of a celebration fund of $250,000.00 by voluntary subscription from the citizens of Newark, of whom 6,000 responded with an astonishing spirit of patriotism.

This Committee is known as the Committee of One Hundred. Its sub-committees were Executive and Finance, Memorial Building, Manufactures and Trade, Publicity, Schools and Philanthropy, Monuments and Tablets, Parades and Decorations, Pageantry, Reception and Entertainment, Exhibitions and Athletics, Legislation, Municipal Participation and Church Participation. The membership of the general Committee and its sub-committees is indicated at the end of this article. The very magnitude of the anniversary plans, their wide scope and variety, is somewhat implied by this array of subsidiary bodies.

The inspiration for Newark's celebration has been stated in many graceful essays in The Newarker, a journal dedicated to its advancement, and published by the Committee of One Hundred under the Editorship of the writer. As succinct as any and as happy as all, is the leader of welcome, written by Hon. Franklin Murphy, Former Governor of New Jersey, in the first pages of the premier edition of the celebrant Newarker—November, 1915. Governor Murphy wrote:

A Word to Everybody

With this issue, The Newarker occupies, in part at least, a new field. It does not entirely desert the old, but its larger part will be devoted to another purpose. It will describe as fully and as clearly as it can the work which the Committee of One Hundred is doing to celebrate in an extensive and [illegible] manner the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the day that Robert Treat and his little band of sturdy men and women from Connecticut landed on the banks of the Passaic River and founded the city of Newark.

The use of the paper has been borrowed for this purpose and when this purpose has been accomplished it will be returned to the Library and its gifted Librarian. In the meantime Mr. Dana will have something to say to his old friends in each issue, and if they miss his gentle touch and his kindly counsel on every page they can feel that the sacrifice they make is for a cause that has his earnest and cordial support.

The Newarker, then, for a few months, will tell you about Newark and its coming celebration. It will remind you that for two centuries it was content to live its own quiet life, recognizing that its nearness to New York must always keep it more or less provincial and that the [illegible] of the greater city would consign it more or less to the background. It will tell you that a half a century ago it began to have ambitions of its own and started to move from under the shadow of its great neighbor. So far it has done very well.

It has now most of the adornment of a great city. Its streets are well paved and well sewered. Its schools, greatly enlarged and improved, are among the best. Its beautiful churches are sufficient to give attractive seats to all who would attend. Its superb water supply is not surpassed in quality. It has a public service in light and transportation that is unexcelled. Its public buildings are important and beautiful and if to some its debt may seem small for so great a city, it may be said with confidence that the projects now in sight may be relied upon to remove that cause for criticism. In the variety and extent of its industries it is among the first and its enterprising salesmen make its wares known in every hamlet throughout the land.

Newark, thank fortune, is still more or less an old fashioned city with old fashioned ways. It has no idle rich. It looks askance at extravagant living. It sneers at ostentation. It goes to church, not as much as it should, but it remembers that it was founded by religious men for religious reasons. And it stands for the moralities in its private and public life.

This is the dear old city in which we live and this is the city that will be two hundred and fifty years old next May and that thinks it is entitled to a birthday party. The people have provided the means, not by an appropriation from the public treasury, but out of their own pockets, an act that was generous and public spirited, and Mayor Haussling has appointed a committee of one hundred to see the right thing done. The sub committees have been at work now for many months and the entire program, in its general features, has been decided upon. They are spoken of with more or less fullness in other columns of this issue. I know the work that has been done and that is being done and I am confident the result will be worthy of the great occasion.

FRANKLIN MURPHY

Following Governor Murphy's genial introduction of the larger aspects of the celebration, Mr John Cotton Dana, Newark's gifted City Librarian, a man of many talents, and wide human interests, described the Newarker to its new readers, as follows:

The Newarker of the Celebration

Newark of 1916 will be a better city than the Newark of today. It may not be much more prosperous, it will not be much larger, but its streets will be cleaner, better paved and better lighted, its children will be more wisely taught and in better surroundings; its health will be more diligently attended to, its philanthropies will be broader and more skilfully applied, its sewage system will be far more complete and efficient; its transport and rapid transit facilities will be more extensive [illegible] justly administered, and its citizens will be wiser and happier.

How is it that I can be so sure that all this will come to pass? Because I have seen Newark continuously better itself in all ways for the past 14 years; because the conditions which have thus led Newark to grow in beauty, comfort and civility are the same conditions that surround Newark today, and because a city that has begun to step upward, as Newark has, cannot lose the habit of being all around progressive in one short year; and because Newark has chosen 1916 as the year in which she will attempt to make the advances of the past few years more rapid and more definite than ever before.

The Library has watched this progress of its city with great interest and intense pleasure. During the last four years it has issued each month a modest journal called The Newarker, in the hope that it would lead more citizens to discover that the library is theirs and can help them; and in the hope, also, that it would lead more citizens and especially the younger ones to look at their city with a keener interest and with a clearer understanding of the fact that this town of theirs presents one of the most complex, most fascinating and most important problems in city building to be found in this country, and that in helping to solve this problem they can find the most interesting and stimulating tasks they can lay their hands to.

The library also hoped in publishing The Newarker that it might, in time, attract to its editing and support other civic and quasi-civic bodies and that thus it might come at last to be the organ, not of one of our good institutions, but of all of them and might go out to the world at large each month as a record of what Newark is doing today and as a prophecy of what Newark will do for its betterment tomorrow.

And now comes the Committee of One Hundred on the Celebration of the 250th Anniversary of Newark's Founding and says, we will take over The Newarker, if only because its name is the one name above all others for the journal we wish to issue, and we will make it for eleven months the organ of our activities and the prophet of the "Better Newark of 1916."

I have great hopes that the Committee of One Hundred will make this journal so fairly representative of the best of Newark's activities, will advertise our excellences in so complete and dignified a manner and will make itself so grateful to friends of the city, wherever they may be found, that when our 1916 proceedings are over, The Newarker will be taken up not by one city institution but by all of them and continued indefinitely as the best of city journals.

JOHN COTTON DANA

Free Public Library, Newark, N J

The City of Newark supports one of the most useful and instructive libraries in the world It is not the largest in the United States but none exists in our country that excels its systems and its enterprise from day to day to stay abreast of Time's march and unending developments It is worthy of a place in this historic frame of the anniversary epoch

The Library and the Celebration

Every man, woman and child in Newark has something to gain or lose by the 1916 Celebration

Because,

1 If the celebration makes outsiders think well of our city more people than ever before will come to it to live, to do business, to make things, to spend their money, and that spells prosperity,

2 If the celebration makes Newarkers think of their city more, they will work more for its welfare, will vote more wisely and will try to make it as good as they think it is, and that spells genuine progress

That is, a successful celebration will make both those within and those without the city help it a [illegible]

Therefore, everybody in Newark will find a profit of some kind in making the celebration a success

But that is not all The man or woman, boy or girl who takes an active, working interest in the 1916 celebration will, by so doing learn something new about his home town its resources, its people, the factors that make it grow, its industries, its schools, its pastimes, and what not, and, to know more about the town you live in means that you get more out of life, are more of a real person and less of a nobody, and that means a wider life and more pleasure out of every day

And here is where the library wants to come in

For, the library has been for many years gathering knowledge about Newark, and now has a [illegible] This knowledge is not what you used to call "book learning," it is plain every day knowledge, the kind you pick up in office, shop or store or on the street corner, only, it is far more accurate, much more abundant, more [illegible] and more readily verified and made useful than the picked up knowledge you are familiar with

And it is not ancient history, either The histories are in the library, all of them, and they are many, but, besides the histories, the library has the every day facts, yesterday's facts, last year's facts Tomorrow will have today's facts

What kind of facts? Well, here are a few names out of a long list of groups of "Newark up-to-date Facts," and they give you an idea of the kinds of information the library keeps on hand

Newark Port Day Exercises, Newark Jitney Bus Ordinances; Newark Last Report [illegible] Newark Meadows Development New Jersey Census, New Jersey Corporations; State and Federal Civil Service Examinations, Mayors of New Jersey Cities Sanitary Survey of School Buildings, Traffic Regulation, What May [illegible] Evening Schools; Number of Contagious Diseases During the Last Week (Newark), Current Labor Laws of the State, Organizations and Clubs of Newark; Current Postal Law; What's Going on in New York

What have these pages of Newark knowledge got to do with the man or woman, boy or girl who wishes to help make the 1916 Celebration a success? The answer is, that if you wish to be of use in this great affair you must first get posted Before anything else you must learn what kind of a celebration this is to be, and who is to run it and how it is to be paid for, and where help is needed All this you can learn at the library and can take away the information, in print, and read it And then you must learn about Newark itself, unless you know it all already, and the only man who knew it all has moved to New York. You must learn about that particular part of Newark's life and doings that you think you can help to make better through the 1916 Celebration -and the library is where you can quickest learn it

The library's specialty these days is Newark, just Newark, everything about Newark, and with one eye always on 1916

Possibly, after all, the best thing about the library is the people who are trying to make it as useful as they can They hope they are doing well If you ask them to help you to get some information and some ideas that will in turn help you to make Newark's 1916 Celebration a delightful and useful event, then they will be sure, at least while trying to help you, that they are one of the good things in a good library

JOHN COTTON DANA

The generous financial contributions by the citizens of Newark, amounting as I have stated, to a quarter of a million dollars, were but one phase of the patriotism which the preparation for the celebration aroused. The Newarker happily became an attractive vehicle for many patriotic essays by Newark writers of exceptional force. The law, the clergy, the political forum, financial circles and the industrial interests of the city all sent the writings of their representatives to the columns of the celebration journal. And these excellent articles played a large part in disposing the public mind toward the tremendous tasks of the Committee, tasks from which its executives found no appreciable respite during the six months preceding the opening of the celebration on May 1.

Indicative of the spirit which should guide our citizens in their festival year, Rabbi Solomon Foster, wrote as follows:

Some Inspirational Values of the 250th Anniversary Celebration

Newark has decided to spend a vast sum of money in commemoration of its 250th anniversary. To celebrate the nativity of the city, a varied entertainment is being provided, comprising parades and fire works, exhibits and conferences, educational exercises and religious services, all of which will require for preparation the skill, energy, time and money of a great many citizens.

Is this expenditure of time, talent and treasure worth while? Will the influence of the celebration be proportionate to its cost? What kind of an income can we expect from the investment we make?

These questions are being asked by many citizens who deprecate the outlay of money in a time of depression like the present, for any but the most necessary undertakings. This article is written as a partial answer to these queries in justification of our great celebration.

We must believe in the greatness and goodness of our future Newark. Our confidence in our ability to achieve a position of honor among the famous cities of the world will do much to create the bigger and better Newark. The institutions that adorn a city's streets, the laws that crown a city's life, the habits that protect and promote a city's happiness and peace, reflect and envisage the hopes and ideals of its citizens.

Before we can succeed in building a city whose walls shall be salvation and whose gates shall be praise, we must be convinced that the enduring foundations of a city are not made of bricks or stones, but of heart-throbs and soul yearnings, and the mind's ripe experience. The real boundaries of a city are but the extensions of the inner spirit of its people. An indifferent attitude to the city and its growth, a selfish and narrow view of the city and its function, a malevolent instead of a magnanimous disposition in meeting the opportunities of the city, will invite the curses of God upon us (Deut. 28). To seek the peace of our city and to pray unto God in its behalf, to cherish hope for its greatness and to labor to make it good, will earn the blessings of security and prosperity for our city and all its inhabitants.

This spirit of confidence and self reliance will be aroused by the celebration we are planning.

The celebration will unite all sections of the city and all elements of the population, which will be of priceless value to the Newark of the future. Every factory and store, every charity and fraternity, every school and sanctuary in the city will have representation in some event during the anniversary festivities. The mingling together of boys and girls from distant schools, the marching together of the different trades and labor organizations, the exhibits of products of many a forge and loom, will bring the distant parts of the city together and unite its varied population. This community of interests with innumerable radii reaching every nook and corner of our life will describe a circle enclosing all our people. A feeling of attachment to the city's pulsating industries, a sense of ownership in the city's throbbing activities, a sensation of participation in the city's growth will create a spirit of jubilant pride in our city.

Nothing prompts a man to cherish a treasure more than a sense of ownership. We need never be urged to watch our own possessions, we require no reminder to try to make them yield a maximum of service, we never count the cost in time and energy and money we give to the things we value as our very own. If our celebration, through its many ramifications of interests will awaken in every mind and heart and soul in this community an appreciation of its part ownership of the civic life, a feeling of attachment to the city's interests, a sense of responsibility for the city's greatness, then our expense and trouble will have been abundantly worth while because of their bountiful return in social and civic values.

Our great celebration which will assemble the variegated products of our industries, as city is sure to stir the imagination of our citizens. The external observations of objects will lead imperceptibly to the internal apprehension of their substance and functions, a sight of the memorials and facts of our city's life will prompt a consideration of the causes and the consequences of our activity, and reveal the persons and the processes that contributed to the growth of the city. To study the city's products will enkindle interest in the human factor, and the mind will begin to question, why is the product not finer? Why not more widely distributed? Why not better known? Is the product more valuable than the producer? Can ignorant, vicious, sinful men create treasures that will bless mankind with peace and happiness? From the facts the inquiring mind will ascend to causes so that knowledge will reveal how a city's greatness depends upon the widest use of its sanctuaries, schools, libraries and museums. The guardians of the city will be recognized to be not its police but its teachers, preachers, editors, librarians, artists, philanthropists, artisans and all who encourage and promote honest trade.

As we plan for the great celebration of our city's 250th anniversary, let us consider the parades, the fire works, the athletic contests and the like merely as heralding the social influences, the civic inspirations, the moral incentives, the humanitarian motives that will help create a bigger and a better Newark.

RABBI SOLOMON FOSTER

His Honor, Mayor Thomas L. Raymond, sensible of the city's high purpose in expending a large fund and even more time and service to arouse a genuine civic spirit in the minds and hearts of its citizens, always wrote and spoke valiantly for the common cause in uncommon terms. Banquet halls often echoed his sustaining sentiments in relation to the anniversary festivities. He fortified the committee and its work at all times, co-operated with its members and executives, and never seemed to let his interest flag.

On one occasion he said the following:

Newark's Vitality and Enthusiasm

One of the most encouraging signs of civic vitality which Newark has recently given is the enthusiasm, the air of anticipation, the generosity with which her people are preparing to celebrate their 250th anniversary of her settlement.

The growth of Newark in that period has differed greatly from the life in the same period of the little Connecticut towns from one or two of which the first Newarkers came. There they sit, charming little New England hamlets, each with its white church, the symbol of the religious fervor of the old Puritans, each with its cluster of towering old elms shimmering in brilliant green, each with its grassy town common and lawns and its rows of old white houses with the many paned windows, each with its library, its school, its evidence of the intellectual spirit which characterized the English forefathers.

Newark started on that road and for a hundred years followed it, as the white spire of Old Trinity testifies, as is evidenced by her broad and stately common, which in the memory of most of us, boasted its own great cluster of elms, by a few of those old white houses such as that of Mr. Marcus L. Ward, and by other land marks which the antiquarian can point out.

But early she diverged from the old New England type and began her march toward industrialism and commerce, so that today she is America in miniature, full of a population tracing their ancestry to all parts of Europe. Each of these peoples in coming here has brought its own local and national customs with it, its religion, manners, mode of life and individual ideals.

The splendid combination of all these has made of Newark a distinctly cosmopolitan city. She teems with a life representative of the life of the world. She has been so engrossed in assimilating all these varied modes of life, so vitally energetic in pushing her manufactures, so absorbed in finding a living for herself that possibly she has not generally developed as beautiful as she might have done. Possibly the old ideals of culture and intellectual intensity have somewhat suffered because of her tremendous energy in other directions.

This celebration will, however, bring before our minds the oneness of these early settlers, and those gracious qualities which we note in the New England towns which have been referred to. The vastly diverse nature of her population has hitherto made this sort of development impossible, but now we have gotten together, as one might say. We have come to a better understanding and are able better to see the virtues of each other, the unusual advantages for a broad and truly modern American growth which each brings to the other. In the past twenty-five years we have witnessed tremendous development apart from the merely industrial or commercial, as may be seen in the architecture of our beautiful new office buildings, our library, museum, high schools, playgrounds, hospitals and organizations for the help of our youth, both boys and girls. All this shows a wonderful flowering of civic pride and common effort and spiritual aspiration.

Will not this great celebration send us with our splendid civic heritage bounding and leaping ahead in every direction?

If we celebrate aright, and I know we will, can we not make of this coming event the great landmark of a new epoch for a new Newark of which the Memorial Building voluntarily erected by all our people shall be the outward and visible sign?

What opportunities are ours? What possibilities lie before us to make of ours a Master City of which it shall be said: "Not only does it excel in commerce and industry, but it is dominated by a lofty and aspiring soul which places it by the side of the world's fairest cities."

MAYOR THOMAS L. RAYMOND

The foregoing views of Newark's leading citizens fairly indicate how the city approached its great birthday. Its origins, however, are still to be described by that indefatigable historian and enthusiastic citizen, Frank J. Urquhart, an editor of the Newark Sunday Call. Mr. Urquhart's brief school history of Newark is the standard of such works, his larger, three volume history, a veritable encyclopaedia of Essex and surrounding lore.

The following is Mr. Urquhart's lucid account of the birth of Newark:

The Beginning of Newark

Newark is two hundred and fifty years old now, in a sense. The men who made it had definitely made up their minds to leave their New England homes for the region now known as New Jersey to abide for good and all. Two hundred and fifty years ago this month, it would seem from such records as we possess, the forerunners of the settlement, Robert Treat and one or two others, were preparing for their tour of New Jersey when they were to select the actual spot upon which the new community was to be reared. The idea, which was later to grow into what we may with honest pride call a "great conception," had been conceived and was now taking form. In the determination to do the first real step had been taken by the late summer of 1665.

The name "New Jersey" had just been given to the tract lying between the Hudson and the Delaware rivers. The first Governor of the new province, Philip Carteret, had arrived in August of that same year and was established in a few shacks at Elizabeth. He wanted settlers. He had circularized New England, setting forth the inducements, "Concessions," he was authorized to offer by his royal master James, Duke of York. The Governor was long-headed. To govern a wilderness inhabited by a few hundred savages would be a dull and unprofitable business. He must have colonists, hundreds of them, and they must be resourceful men of good standing, whenever possible possessed of full purses and with some reputation as conquerors of new lands. Penniless adventurers would be no asset to him. So he made his appeal to the sturdy Puritan folk of New England and Long Island (and the latter were close kin of the former). He offered them the best inducements that had ever been extended to colonists in America. He bid high, and he was wise, almost beyond his day and generation. He promised more than he found himself either able or willing to fulfill a few years later. But he seems to have been sincere in the beginning, and the people of New England believed in him.

There had been religious and social unrest among the Puritans of New England for a number of years. There were several groups who, while in the minority in their respective communities, were weary of the domination of the rest and were casting about for ways and means to remove. One of these groups was in Milford, Connecticut, which had in close sympathy with it a smaller company in Branford and a few other sympathizers in New Haven and Guilford. As early as 1661 some of these people had been looking toward the Newark Bay region, and negotiations with the Dutch for colonization went on almost continuously from that time, although without success, until the English conquest of New Amsterdam in 1664, with Robert Treat and his intimates among the most active of the Puritans in these proceedings. The Dutch were apparently suspicious of the New Englanders and were wary of their aggressive independence of thought. Governor Carteret understood them better and knew their value. Copies of his "Concessions" reach Connecticut at the psychological moment.

Robert Treat and his companion, or companions, are known to have been in New Jersey in February, 1666. They first sailed down the coast and into the Delaware, and for a time looked with favor upon the region close to where Burlington is now located. Sentiment had probably played a part in drawing them in that direction, as the Pilgrim Fathers had originally intended to make their homes along the Delaware forty odd years before. They strove to drive the Mayflower from the bleak New England coast, but fate and the winds and tides willed it otherwise. Treat and his lieutenants were of the same stock, and it was some of their immediate forbears who, about 1640, had planned a colony on the Delaware and had been bitterly disappointed in failing to establish it. For the third time Puritans now sought the same region and for the last time turned from it. It was too far from other English-speaking folk. Philadelphia was undreamed of. There was nothing but the unfriendly wilderness about them, and the forts down the river were in a state of comparative decrepitude and offered little protection. So Treat reluctantly left the Delaware, presently anchoring his vessel off the huddle of huts where Governor Carteret was making shift to establish himself. What the visitors saw of the neighborhood pleased them, so that they made a searching and deliberate survey of the whole neighborhood we know full well. Their choice of the town site shows that. The marshes did not deter them; they were familiar with such territory in Connecticut, and they saw the rising ground, the comparatively level plateau just behind the bluff that rose from the [illegible] beautiful Passaic. The path from Connecticut was by water, therefore safe from savages, and being planned reasonably secure against shipwreck. If the [illegible] descended upon them from the hills the settlers would always have retreat open to New York by way of the river and the bay. The multiplicity of streams assured them plenty of water power. The Indian trails [illegible] them that access to and from the immediate interior would be, for that day, easy. They noted the many kinds of timber, the abundance of game and the vast areas quite far removed from marsh [illegible] great [illegible] impossible. They noted that it would be [illegible] from New England [illegible] several successive groups, as the trip [illegible] was [illegible] readily [illegible] made in a single week. They could therefore [illegible] break [illegible] crops a [illegible], and [illegible] the old and the infirm. So they told Governor Carteret they would probably take up settlement here, and went home to make their report.

Let every Newarker dismiss from his mind forever the impression that there was anything [illegible] or the mostly [illegible] choice of town site made by those far-seeing men two hundred and fifty years ago this very autumn. They were seers, these men. They were men for what we now call "big business." Unquestionably, they [illegible] few of the others who came with them the next May, to stay, would be leaders to-day, as they were leaders in the colony in the succeeding years and as they were [illegible] Narrow and intolerant in matters of religion as we see such things now, they were and must always be reckoned as master town-builders.

Newarkers' observance of its two hundred and fiftieth anniversary may fittingly [illegible] our preparations [illegible] as thorough and painstaking and regardful for the future as they were in theirs, the celebration of next year will do honor to their [illegible]

FRANK J. URQUHART

The Committee of One Hundred

In July, 1914, Mayor [illegible] appointed the Committee of One Hundred pursuant to authority conferred by an Act of the Legislature, and an ordinance of the Common Council of the city of Newark. Since their appointment, the members of that committee have carried on the work of preparing for the city's 250th anniversary celebration through numerous sub-committees. These are: Executive and Finance, Manufactures and Trades, Memorial Building, Pageantry, Parades and Decorations, [illegible], Athletics, [illegible], Municipal Participation, Church Participation, Schools and Philanthropy, Reception and Entertainment, and Historical and Literary.

In the spring of 1915 the Committee of One Hundred, of which Former Governor Franklin Murphy had been elected chairman, summoned to its aid 300 of the city's leading business and professional men, known as the Committee of Three Hundred, and, after an animated campaign, obtained subscriptions for $250,000.00, or $1,000 for each year of the city's existence. From that time onward the plans for the celebration were urged forward with great energy by the Committee of One Hundred and its staff in the Kinney Building, Newark.

In January, 1916, Hon. Thos. L. Raymond, Mayor of Newark, appointed, at the suggestion of the Executive and Finance Committee, fifty of the city's leading women and designated them as the Committee of Fifty. Mrs. George Barker became its chairman This committee immediately developed the social phases of the celebration and rendered effective assistance to the city's festal enterprise.

The general plan of the celebration which should continue from May to October, 1916 included a large Music Festival of four days and nights, an Industrial Exposition, Historic and Patriotic Ceremonies on May 1st, at Proctor's Palace Theatre, at the opening of the anniversary fete; similar ceremonies in the First Church on Founders' Day, May 17; a great Historic Pageant with 4,000 actors in an open ampitheatre equipped to seat 40,000 persons; city, state and national athletic events, various sports, including horse racing throughout the summer, golf tournaments, numerous parades, including those of the National Guard, patriotic and fraternal societies, the public, parochial and private schools, army veterans of the Civil and the Spanish wars, musical and choral concerts, banquets, a Union Church Service in all Newark Churches, and a religious mass meeting in the Pageant amphitheatre at Weequahic Park on May 28

The following article by Rev. W. J Dawson, Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, happily indicates the lofty spirit in which the citizens of Newark contemplated their prospective celebration

What We Celebrate

The celebration of the Two Hundred and Fiftieth year of the city of Newark is in reality a celebration of all that is characteristic in the American Spirit and in American History

A band of religious adventurers comes to the banks of the Passaic in order that they may carry out their own ideas of religious and civic life, without restraint and in complete accordance with their own convictions. These men are serious and believing men They are willing to pay the price of sacrifice for their faith They leave a settled community to incur all the perils and hardships of the pioneer, to begin life over again, that they may build up a community which shall more perfectly express their ideals than that which they have left.

This is intensely characteristic of the spirit which created the American Republic The Newark pioneers did in their way precisely what the Pilgrim Fathers did in New England. They were alike adventurers of faith They shared in common the passion for liberty They both desired to create a model community, governed by virtue dedicated to freedom, and characterized by the love of justice, righteousness and truth

Every succeeding migration of the American people has been more or less governed by the same spirit We see fresh bands of American men and women continually detaching themselves from a civilization which they have judged effete seeking a larger liberty, passing on beyond the Mississippi, beyond the Rocky Mountains, incurring vast hardships with cheerful courage, establishing their schools churches and courthouses wherever they settle, until in 1915 our flag waves from the Atlantic to the Pacific The spirit of endless quest for newer and freer forms of life is the American spirit This history of the crusading American is the heart of all American history

The story of Newark is the history of America in brief, and when we celebrate the Two Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the city, we are really celebrating America itself America in her struggles for Liberty, her conquest of the wilderness, and her deliberate attempt to frame her life by consistent principles, which are based on deliberate convictions, and not on the traditions and examples of the past

The Memorial Building

That something in a permanent form should be erected to remind future generations of Newark's 250th anniversary had been a frequent suggestion from the time the thought of the celebration was broached Mayor Haussling presented the idea of a memorial building to the Committee of One Hundred at its organization meeting The Committee itself took up the matter at the first opportunity and referred to a special committee of twenty-five the question of recommending what form the permanent memorial should take The special committee appointed five of its members to analyze and formulate the suggestions that might be received. Each member of the Committee of One Hundred was particularly invited to submit views and the general public was asked through the press to make its sentiments known

Of the many replies received ninety per cent. favored a building as a permanent memorial. The Committee of Five so reported to the Committee of Twenty-five, which in turn reported to the full Committee of One Hundred. That body adopted the report as its own, and instructed a special committee of seven, headed by Chairman Franklin Murphy, to take the necessary steps to carry out the project. The latter committee prepared a bill which, after amendment, was passed at the legislature of 1915 and submitted to the voters of the city, November 2d, 1915.

The law, as adopted by the voters, permits the city to sell bonds to the amount of $1,500,000 to purchase a site and pay for the erection of the permanent memorial building. Not more than $500,000 in bonds can be issued in any one year. The memorial building it is proposed shall provide quarters for the Newark Museum, whose valuable and rapidly growing collections are crowding the Public Library, shall contain a spacious auditorium for music festivals, conventions and other great public gatherings and provide facilities for other public bodies and uses.

Some features that have been proposed by citizens embrace a city university, public baths and gymnasium and other features for the free use of all the people.

During December the Memorial Building Committee selected a site on the southeast corner of Broad and Camp streets, opposite Lincoln Park. This committee was composed of ex-Governor Franklin Murphy, chairman; Christian W. Feigenspan, John Cotton Dana, Forrest F. Dryden, Uzal H. McCarter and James R. Nugent. Referring to the decision of the committee, Mr. Murphy, chairman of the Committee of One Hundred, and of the Memorial Building Committee, said:

"The center of the city's population is at the corner of Kinney and Washington Streets; the growth of the city is southward and westward. The site is one of great beauty. Its low cost, undoubtedly, had a favorable effect on the Committee, and the construction of a great building on Lincoln Park will hasten the development of all property north to Market Street, and thus increase the revenues of the city.

I think the matters of convenience and accessibility were perhaps most influential with the committee. If you put a pair of dividers on the map, you will see that the site is as far south of Market Street as the Library is north. It can be reached by all the trolley lines of the city, either directly or with a single transfer."

On Friday, December 17th, the action of the committee was unanimously ratified by the Common Council of the city, and this was immediately approved by the Mayor.

Of the $1,500,000 of 4½% bonds authorized for the purchase of a site and erection of the Memorial Building, $500,000 were promptly sold at $107.573, the highest price for which a 4½% municipal bond has been sold hereabout for many years. The entire issue was taken by Remick, Hodges & Co. of New York.

The Memorial Building Committee has engaged Warren Powers Laird, professor of architecture at the University of Pennsylvania, as consulting architect respecting the designs of the building. Referring to this, Mr. Murphy says:

"There will be a preliminary competition confined exclusively to Newark architects. The two most successful in this preliminary work will be invited to present plans in the final competition, which will be participated in by perhaps seven of the chief architects of this country."

Work on the designs and the building will begin immediately. While it cannot be completed during the year of the celebration, such progress may be made as to indicate to citizens and visitors the substantial character and beauty of this splendid monument of the city's anniversary.

The belief that the Committee of One Hundred, in charge of the city's anniversary festivities, is also in charge of the plans for the erection of a Memorial Building, is erroneous. The Committee of One Hundred was appointed by Mayor Jacob Haussling and its official functions cease at the end of the anniversary celebration next autumn. The Memorial Building Committee was appointed by the Common Council of the City of Newark and its work will continue during a period of several years, until the Memorial Building has been erected and dedicated. That the gentlemen on the latter committee are also members of the former has created no legal relationship whatever between them.

Newark's anniversary will be fittingly inaugurated on May 1st by the firing of salutes at eight o'clock in the morning, appropriate music and a parade of Essex Troupe First Regiment, Orange Battery, Jersey City Signal Corps, Boy Scouts and other local organizations

Even more significant, however, will be the historic dedication of the celebrant season at Proctor's Palace Theatre, Newark, the use of which has been graciously donated for the occasion by Mr F F Proctor Here the ceremonies will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon with an overture by a volunteer orchestra selected from the leading musical organizations of the city, under the auspices of the Musicians' Club of Newark The Right Reverend Edwin S Lines, Bishop of Newark will offer the invocation a choir composed of sixteen voices selected from as many churches will sing, Former Governor Franklin Murphy, presiding, will deliver an address of welcome on behalf of the city, Governor Fielder, of New Jersey, will speak for the State Mayor Thos L Raymond for the city; Justice Francis J Swayze will deliver the historic address upon the founding of the city Dr Lyman Whitney Allen, of Newark, will read the ode he has written for the occasion music especially written for the anniversary by Henry Hadley, the eminent composer, will be publicly rendered for the first time, C Mortimer Wiske will lead the orchestra and other appropriate items will complete an impressive program which Bishop John J O'Connor will close with a benediction

To these ceremonies the Historical Societies of the United States have been invited to send delegates Other distinguished visitors from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut have also been invited

On the same night May 1st Newark's great Music Festival will begin in the First Regiment Armory at 8 o'clock Nothing more notable in the musical world will obtain in the East An orchestra composed of 250 pieces and a chorus of 1,500 voices indicate the magnitude of this superb event under the direction of C Mortimer Wiske and the organization of Thornton W Allen of the Newark Music Festival Association a permanent body of great musical inspiration to the State of New Jersey

The $500 prize offered by the association for the best choral work for mixed chorus and orchestra, written by an American citizen on an American subject has been awarded to Franz Carl Bornschein of Baltimore Maryland whose composition "Onowa," entered under the nom de plume of "Heroes Aut Artes" was judged the best Dr Carl Busch, conductor of the Kansas City Symphony Orchestra, who submitted a composition "America" won second choice, and W Franke Harling of Boston won third place with his work, "The Miracle of Time."

Franz Carl Bornschein is not only a composer of some repute but is also a violinist, teacher in the preparatory department of the Peabody Institute of Music, director of the students' orchestra at that institution conductor of the Orchestra Music Settlement of Baltimore, and the composer of a violin concerto in G Minor, "The Djinns," "Zuleika," etc He was formerly music critic on the Baltimore Evening Sun

Dr Carl Busch is the conductor of the Kansas City Symphony Orchestra and is well-known as a composer, being the author of such works as "King Olaf," "The Four Winds," "American Flag," orchestral works, Indian songs, etc. He has won many competition prizes in the past

Mr Harling is well known as a composer and through his connections with the Boston Music Company with which concern he is employed

The Judges of the contest were Josef Stransky, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Louis Koemmenich, conductor of the New York Oratorio Society, and C. Mortimer Wiske, conductor of the three New Jersey Festivals. All three decided upon the same winner.

While only one, "Onowa," won the $500 prize all three have been produced at each of the three New Jersey Music Festivals, in Paterson, on April 25; Newark on May 1, and in Jersey City on May 9 "American Composers' Night" opens each of the festivals, and at this time the compositions are produced and an invitation is extended to each of the composers to be present In Newark a chorus of 1,200 to 1,500 singers as well as an orchestra of at least 100 musicians will perform these works, in the other two cities the chorus and orchestra are to be nearly as large Both Dr Busch and Mr Harling will receive a royalty on the sales of their compositions

The contest which was announced last June attracted the attention of America's best known composers. Works were sent in from California, Michigan, Baltimore, Kansas City, New York, Texas, New Jersey, Boston, Colorado and numerous other states and cities.

The Music Festival includes six performances, on May 1, 2, 3 and 4th.

On May 13th Newark's Industrial Exposition will open in the First Regiment Armory, close on June 3d. It will be an epitome of the industrial energy and resources of the city. The following advance account of it by Merle L. Downs, its manager, will indicate its scope and purpose.

Newark's Anniversary Industrial Exposition

Time May 13th to June 3rd, 1916.
Place First Regiment Armory, Newark, N. J.

Object: To exhibit the goods manufactured in the industrial zone of Newark that they may become the standard of quality throughout the nation, so to establish the value of these in the minds of the buyers that when in the market they will, from force of habit, turn to Newark first.

The Manufacturers and Trade Committee, composed of seven members of the members of the Committee of One Hundred under the leadership of August V. Hamburg, chairman, started their work with the above idea as a basis for the results to be obtained.

Under the design and supervision of a competent architect, decorative plans were formulated and the constructional ideas brought forth that will turn the Armory from a cold, inhospitable building ordinarily used by the soldiers of Newark, into a picture that will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to study it.

When on Saturday, May 13th, 1916, at 4 P. M., the Industrial Exposition opens its doors to the public, our citizens will have an opportunity of examining the products of many Newark manufacturers and the opportunity to see many of the processes daily going on in these large factories. They will then understand why Newark is recognized throughout the nation as an important manufacturing center.

From its very nature the Exposition is considered one of the most important events of our 250th Anniversary Celebration and the result of many months' work will, it is believed, prove it to be one of the most interesting exhibits of Newark's products by Newark's manufacturers, ever seen.

The Committee realizes that owing to the limited space available in the Armory many applicants cannot be accommodated. As announced some months ago, applications for space are being considered in the order received, and allotments will continue to be made until all space is taken.

To better provide for the needs of the varied industries of the city, plans are being drawn, for one or more annexes which will increase the Exhibit area from 40 to 50 per cent.

At the present time, allotments have been granted to approximately 75 different lines of industry. There will be 250 or more exhibits in the exposition.

Among the exhibitors of national fame will be found such concerns as the Murphy Varnish Co., Whitehead & Hoag, Hamburg Button Co., J. Wiss & Sons Co., Weston Electrical Instrument Co., Ellis Adding Machine Co., G. Mennen Chemical Co., Lovell & McConnell Mfg. Co., Rubberset Co., Brewster & Sons, Splitdorf Electrical Co., Chas. R. DeBevoise, Lauter Co., William V. Val, Inc., Henry R. Worthington Pump Co., Manufacturers [illegible] Co., Central Stamping Co., Standard Oil Co., Gould & Eberhardt, James A. Banister, Eberhard Faber, Crocker Wheeler Electric Co., General Electric Co., Edison Storage Battery Co., Johnson & Murphy and many others equally prominent in their varied lines of industry.

The Exposition will be open daily from 10.30 A. M. to 10.30 P. M. and in order that all may have an opportunity of studying the industrial products of this territory the admission has been placed at the nominal sum of 25 cents.

As such an Exposition is educational, the Committee has made a special concession for children under 15 years of age who desire to view the exhibitions prior to five o'clock in the afternoon. For them a special ticket will be issued at 10 cents each.

MERLE S. DOWNS

While conventions parades exhibits, surveys concerts, banquets and other interesting events succeed each other from day to day, Founders Day on May 17th will have a program all its own and of much importance It is the intention to have the several northern New Jersey regiments of the National Guard Parade in the forenoon and to hold a historic and religious service in the First Presbyterian Church in the afternoon The Rev W J Dawson Governor Holcomb of Connecticut and Staff Governor Fielder of New Jersey Mayor Thos L Raymond Hon Franklin Murphy, and others will speak

To a Newark architect, Mr Jordon Green, was awarded the prize of $500 00 offered by the Parades and Decoration Committee for the best plan for street decoration for the celebration The committee unanimously endorsed the selection made by Henry Baechlin and Gilbert C Higby, the two architects who had been appointed to examine and advise upon the plans submitted The official Anniversary colors adopted by the Executive and Finance and the Parades and Decorations Committees, are the orange and black of the University of Princeton, whose first home and inspiration was in Newark At the intersection of Broad and Market streets, four ornamental plaster pylons are placed one at each of the four corners These pylons are six feet square and twenty six feet high and surmounted by a figure seven feet high symbolizing commerce and industry At the important centers of interest throughout the central part of the city, namely, Washington, Military and Lincoln Parks, Essex County Court House, Pennsylvania Railroad Station, etc., forty-eight additional pylons are placed These pylons are similar to those at the corner of Broad and Market Streets, and are six feet square and twenty two feet high The lighting poles along the two main streets are decorated with bunting, flags and festoons The official colors of the celebration, orange and black, give the dominating effects to the color scheme Electrical streamers and festoons suspended between the lighting poles provide brilliant illumination completing the decorative scheme and making possible a continuous display

Mr Green gives the following interpretation of the decorative scheme

The general scheme for the decoration of the city provides for the embellishment of the two principal streets Broad and Market Streets, and the buildings fronting thereon These streets, which are in plan in the form of a cross, intersect at the commercial heart of the city and terminate at their ends at points of interest namely city parks County Court House and railroad stations At the P R R Station a Court of Welcome is provided comprised of an imposing historical monument surrounded by a covered colonnade At Lincoln Park a Monumental Court of Honor is planned and the intersection of Broad and Market Streets is covered by an impressive dome executed in various colors The intersecting streets are spanned by appropriate arches, columns, etc The street lighting poles along the front are decorated and covered with historical industrial and commercial flags and banners which are connected by festoons to illuminate at night Reviewing stands are provided for all needs Symbolic sculpture is employed and at night the whole decorative scheme is brilliantly illuminated

The next large event will be the Historical Pageant to be presented in the open amphitheatre at Weequahic Park on the nights of May 30 31 June 1 and 2nd with Mr Henry Hadley as composer of the music and Miss Mary Porter Beegle directress of dancing This great spectacle is aptly described by Thos Wood Stevens, pageant director as follows

The Pageant and the Celebration

In making a festival for the two hundred and fifty years of Newark's achievement, it is most reasonable that Newark should take one clear look at the life of these years as they passed by It is to make this glimpse the clearer that the pageant is to be produced After all the city is not celebrating its mere duration it is celebrating the growth through that duration, of its community life

The pageant will set forth in broad, graphic action the successive phases of the city's experiences To the younger generation the study of history in books, especially of local history, is likely to have but a limited significance Events must be seen history's words must be heard, and the whole must be suffused with the dramatic feeling which accompanies the crises of the struggle, in order that these years may live again in our imaginations.

This problem—the problem of making the past speak for itself, potently, in ringing tones—is the problem which the pageant attacks. It goes about this work directly. Have we in the history a time when the Puritan spirit was driven by its own sense of righteousness to this place, when the founders moored their boats and made their bargains? This time the pageant sets before our eyes. The founders in their character and habit as they lived, move and speak and have their being; the establishment of the town, its consistencies, its prejudices, its ideals—all these things reach the audience of the pageant easily and directly. The growing feeling of insubordination to the exactions of the proprietors and that greater discontent which followed and which culminated in the stirring scenes of the revolution can be readily portrayed.

The growth of the modern city through the less isolated but frequently very important events of the first half of the Nineteenth Century furnish us roughly speaking, another act in the drama; and, after all, it is this sequence of events—this cumulative common experience—that gives incentive and meaning to our celebration as a whole.

So it is most fitting that the pageant should be the first phase of the celebration, and having looked back over its two and a half centuries of life, the city may then turn its attention to its living present and its festival year.

But the pageant, if it is to present these matters clearly to the public, must first be produced and in the production there is opportunity for great co-operation of citizens and for the working out of innumerable interesting details. The arts of music, the dance, design and stage-craft must all be employed and the artists must come spontaneously from the city itself, bringing with them not only their skill but their willingness to work together in the cause of a great civic demonstration.

For the present this work is largely to secure the most competent and representative people for each part of the task, and the pageant committee is now searching out, or its sub-committees on production, the men and women who can best give counsel about music, dancing, lighting and stage-craft. The members of these sub-committees will be, as the work progresses, actively in charge of all its details. The first and most vital step toward a successful pageant is the organization of a public-spirited and representative body of volunteers, a body which in Newark is already well on the way to successful formation.

THOMAS WOOD STEVENS, Director of the Pageant

The Pageant Music Composer

Henry Hadley, the eminent composer, a resident of Somerville, Mass., was engaged by the Pageant Committee of the Committee of One Hundred to write the choral, dance and other music of Newark's great historic pageant. Sensible of the limitations of stringed instruments in the open, Mr. Hadley writes for band instruments, thereby music that can be distinctly heard and fully enjoyed by the most distant auditor.

Henry Hadley was born in Somerville, Mass., Dec. 20th, 1874, and showed marked ability in musical composition before he was twelve years old. Under the instruction of his father he learned to play the piano and violin. His first studies in composition were at the New England Conservatory of Music under Stephen Emery and George W. Chadwick. At the age of twenty he composed his first serious work for orchestra, an overture called "Hector and Andromache," which was performed in New York under Walter Damrosch at a concert of the Manuscript Society in Chickering Hall. He had carried on the study of violin coincidently with composition and in 1893 made a tour of the United States as leader with the Laura Schirmer Mapleson Opera Company. In the following summer he went to Vienna to study counterpoint with Eusebius Mandyczewski, and while there completed his Ballet Suite No. 3, which was heard first at a concert of the Manuscript Society, New York, under the late Adolf Neuendorf, and was afterwards included in the repertory of Sam Franko's American Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Hadley was appointed director of the music department at St. Paul's School, Garden City, L. I., in 1895, a position he held for seven years. He composed the following works during that remarkably fruitful period, two symphonies, "Youth and Life," first produced under Anton Seidl at a concert of the Manuscript Society in 1897, and "The Four Seasons," which won the New England Conservatory and the Paderewski prizes in 1902, an overture, "In Bohemia," first produced in Pittsburgh by Victor Herbert, an overture to Stephen Phillips' tragedy, "Herod," a cantata, "In Music's Praise," which won the Oliver Ditson Company prize and was first produced at Carnegie Hall, New York, by the People's Choral Union in 1899, an "Oriental Suite," produced at a Sunday concert at the Metropolitan Opera House under the composer's direction. 150 songs and the incidental music to two plays, "The Daughter of Hamilear" and "Audrey." Of these the "Four Seasons" symphony has been the most widely heard, having been performed in all the principal cities of the United States, in London under Sir Villiers Stanford, and in Warsaw under Mlynarski. After leaving St Paul's School, Mr Hadley composed a comic opera, "Nancy Brown," and then went to Europe again (1904) where he continued composition and appeared in many cities as a conductor. His tone-poem, "Salome," was performed under his direction in Berlin, Cassel, Warsaw, Monte Carlo, Wiesbaden, etc, and was also heard in the United States, where it was first played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra April 12, 1907. In 1908 he became attached to the Stadt theater at Mayence, where he brought out a one-act opera "Safie." The first performance was on April 6, 1909, with Miss Marguerite Lemon in the leading role.

Meantime his rhapsody, "The Culprit Fay," had won the $1 000 prize offered by the National Federation of Musical Clubs (America) and in May, 1909 the composer returned to this country to conduct its first performance by the Theodore Thomas orchestra. He then accepted an appointment as conductor of the Seattle (Wash) Symphony Orchestra and began his duties in October, 1909, which position he held two years. In 1911 he conducted his Fourth Symphony "North, East, South and West" for the Norfolk (Conn) Music Festival. The same month he conducted this symphony in Queen's Hall, London, and in September of the same year he conducted it at the Worcester (Mass) Festival with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. In 1911 he became the conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra for four seasons. His other productions are a third symphony (1906), a concert piece for violoncello and orchestra (1907), a church service, seven ballads for chorus and orchestra, a string quartette, a piano quintette, a violin sonata, and other lesser works.

Mr Hadley's later works include the music for "The Atonement of Pan," a festival play written for the Bohemian Club Grove (1912), Lucifer, a tone-poem (1915), written for the Norfolk Festival and performed under his direction in Norfolk, and "Izora, daughter of Montezuma," a grand opera in three acts (1914).

In 1910 he made his appearance with the Chicago, Boston, New York and Philadelphia orchestras as composer-conductor. He has had over 100 performances of his works in America and Europe.

Just previous to the pageant, namely, on Sunday, May 28, the churches of the city will hold their union service mass meeting in the same amphitheatre at Weequahic Park under the conduct of the Rt. Rev Edwin S. Lines, D D, assisted by the members of the Church Participation Committee of the Committee of One Hundred.

In June the city and interscholastic Athletic Championships will be held at Weequahic Park, on the new green and track built for the anniversary Athletics last autumn by Sparrow Robertson. On September 8 and 9th the amateur Athletic Union championships will be held in the same place. These are the world's greatest athletic events for 1916 and should establish new records in the history of athletics.

On this subject Mr Fred W Rubien, Secretary Treasurer of the A A U writes as follows

Newark's Great Athletic Events

When the gates are thrown open at Weequahic Park, Newark N J, for the National Amateur Athletic Union Track and Field Championships in September, Uncle Sam's great athletes will have at their disposal one of the fastest tracks and the best equipped athletic field in the country.

The quarter mile running track has been finished for some time and the jumping pits and rings for the weight events will be finished as soon as the condition of the soil will permit in the spring. This beautiful quarter mile oval is located inside of the old Waverly Trotting Track, which played so important a part in trotting history years ago, and is so arranged that all of the finishes will be directly in front of the new grandstand.

My reasons for believing that the track is athletically perfect are based on refinements of track construction, which have been applied in the construction of this track

Both the track itself and the straightaway are twenty four feet wide through their whole extent, with a slight elevation on the two turns reaching a maximum of a foot at the outer edge. There is ample room for five hurdle lanes, one more than on the customary tracks.

The grade on the turns is such as to enable an athlete to take them at the top of his speed if he so desires.

The track is built on a uniform bed, with a subgrade of one inch in nine feet from either edge to the center, over six feet wide and about eight inches in depth at its exact centre. Above this is laid a six inch bed of coarse cinders, topped by a bed two inches in thickness of three-fourths inch screened cinders, the top dressing of ordinary tracks.

Above this is spread a final dressing of steam boiler cinders and clay in equal parts, screened through a five sixteenths inch mesh, which is the finest pulverized top dressing ever used on a running track. This combination is expected to give unusual resiliency and that perfect "springiness" the athlete is always looking for.

Take-offs and landing pits are so located that the performances of the jumpers can be seen by every one in any part of the stand as they are directly in front of it. Circles for the weight and hammer throwers are so placed that the pits will be diagonally across the field and directly toward the stand, with resting or landing spots for the iron implements of sport at points near the finish lines for the sprints and hurdle races.

Javelin and discus throwers will perform in a field which is approximately 212 by 400 feet of clear space between the two curves of the track and also directly in front of the grandstand.

As the meeting in September will bring together the best athletes of the country, and is the first to be held in the immediate vicinity of New York since the meet of 1908 at Travers Island, and as the people of Newark were anxious to have it the best ever held, neither effort nor expense has been spared to make the track the finest and fastest ever constructed.

The track at San Francisco on which the 1915 Amateur Athletic Union Championships were contested was considered to be the best ever constructed and the fastest in the country, but on account of its shape, 3 laps to a mile, athletes found difficulty in running in their best form, and its location at the water's edge was found to be too breezy a spot for athletic performances.

I feel confident this track at Weequahic Park will be even faster, sheltered as it is, and I look for world's records there if this year's athletes improve relatively with their gradual improvement from year to year, and I have every reason to believe that we shall see such phenomenal performances on the new cinder path as will add credit to the 250th birthday celebration of Newark, in which athletic sports will be a conspicuous feature.

The committee in charge of the athletic end of the celebration are working hand in hand with the A. A. U. Championship Committee to have all of the country's most famous athletes compete, and are especially anxious to have the Coast men meet the Eastern Stars under favorable climatic conditions.

If present plans materialize eastern athletic enthusiasts will be given an opportunity of seeing Fred Kelly, of Los Angeles, Fred Murray, Frank Sloman and O. Millard, of San Francisco, Simpson, of St. Louis, McBride, of Denver, Talbott, of Kansas City, Marks, of Milwaukee, Loomis and Ray, of Chicago, Howard Drew, and others who humbled the pick of Eastern Athletes last summer at San Francisco.

FREDERICK W. RUBIEN.

All during the summer and far into the autumn Newark will continue to entertain her guests. Each Saturday from June to October inclusive the Road Horse Association of New Jersey will conduct its series of harness horse races at Weequahic Park, with a street parade May 13, and the Junior League of Amateur Driving Clubs will hold a meet at the Park July 20-22.

Parades and conventions will continue with interesting frequency all summer. A book of Newark Anniversary Poems will be published in August and the result of the Poem competition determined and announced. Moving pictures of Newark's principal events will be made and thereafter exhibited in other cities.

The Poster Exhibit which has been traveling since November 1915, will continue its itinerary throughout the year 1916. Reproductions of the $1,000 prize poster, painted by Adolph Treidler, are being exhibited throughout the country.

The Poster Competition was a notable undertaking in the realm of the poster art and poster publicity. The committee will have spent nearly $12,000, in carrying out this, the first of its splendid publicity features in aid of the celebration. Over 200 artists submitted entries—some of them the most prominent poster artists living.

In the November issue of the Newarker, the writer briefly mentioned the poster exhibit in the following manner:

Newark's Poster Exhibit

The Newark Poster Exhibit, of upwards of 230 posters from 163 artists, was perhaps the most notable expression of the poster art in America during the last twenty years. It opened in the Free Public Library on October 13th and closed on Sunday evening, October 31st, having been viewed by over 9,000 visitors from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut.

From a purely artistic point of view, the exhibit disclosed a high order of merit. The poster art is a distinct art. It combines the elements of the higher cartoon with an artistic publicity purpose. It has its laws of composition, color, publicity value and brevity. It tells its story or conveys an idea at a single glance. It is typical of an era of haste and quick perceptions.

The symbolism of the Newark Poster Exhibit is fine. Recognizing this, we have undertaken a unique compilation of the interpretations of the artists concerning their work. A beautiful catalog is being prepared wherein the best of the posters will be represented by half-tone plates. The names of the artists and the interpretations of their work together with a critical review, will be included in the catalog. This production in itself will be a work of art. It will be distributed in the City of Newark to those who apply therefor at the Public Library. It will accompany the exhibits of the posters in other cities. This will be the first of the Celebration souvenirs, and, to a degree, will indicate the lofty tone and genuine quality which should obtain in every celebrant feature of the Anniversary.

The Newark Poster Exhibit opened at the Anderson Galleries, 40th Street and Madison Ave., New York City on November 8th, and continued for one week. From there it will be sent to Philadelphia, Trenton and New Brunswick, and to other cities in other states. It promises to be a splendid advertisement for the City of Newark and that enterprise which conceived the collection of such an excellent group of American posters.

The first prize of $1,000 was awarded to Adolph Treidler, of New York, for a design depicting Robert Treat indicating the site of Newark, the second prize was awarded to Miss Helen Dryden, for a design depicting the ship of the founders and the carnival spirit of the 1916 celebration, and the special prize, voted by the public was awarded to A. E. Foringer, of Grantwood, N. J.

At the suggestion of the writer, the Committee of One Hundred undertook a Poem Competition which promises to attract the attention of the leading poets of the country. The following are the conditions governing this feature of the celebration:

The Newark Poetry Competition

For the 250th Anniversary of the Founding of Newark, New Jersey

1666–1916

The Committee of One Hundred offers a series of prizes, aggregating $1,000 for poems on Newark and its 250th Anniversary and plans to publish the best of the poems submitted in a volume to be entitled "Newark's Anniversary Poems."

In this competition all the poets of our country are invited to participate.

The prize poem on Newark and its anniversary may touch on any or all of such topics as, the City's historic aspects, its rapid industrial development, its civic and educational features, the chief purpose of its celebration, which is, to develop a wider and deeper public spirit.

"Newark is not all industries, smoke, rush and din. It is a great centre of production and in its special field of work is alert and progressive. But it has also beautiful homes, fine parks, admirable schools, a useful library. Its thousands of shade trees are the envy of many cities. The cleanliness of its highways surprises even the Newarker himself. It has a good government, churches in plenty and many worthy clubs and societies. Art and science, even, are not altogether neglected here. Newark is an old town, solid and conservative and tenacious of certain oldtime peculiarities. Newark, with 400,000 people, the largest city in New Jersey, though known to all the world as a producer of honest goods, is still to that same world quite unknown as to its own special quality among American cities. Will the poet, the man of insight and of prophecy, kindly come forth and discover her to the world and to herself?

There are many interesting phases in Newark's life and in its celebration. All are within the field of the inspiration of the poet we are seeking. To make our volume interesting its verses should touch on a wide range of subjects. The wits as well as the philosophers have their opportunity here. We think our city already quite worthy! Now we seek a poet who shall make us famous! If with him comes one who makes us ludicrous—and he does it well—to him also we can award a prize!

Conditions of Poem Competition

The poets of our country are invited to submit poems on Newark in competition for thirteen prizes in gold:

First Prize—two hundred and fifty dollars.
Second Prize—one hundred and fifty dollars.
Third Prize—one hundred dollars.
Ten prizes of fifty dollars each.

The Historical and Literary and the Publicity Committees of the Committee of One Hundred have charge of this competition and have established therefor the following rules:

Poems submitted for the competition must not contain more than one thousand words.

They must be typewritten on one side only of sheets of paper of letter size, about 8 by 11 inches.

They must reach the office of the Committee on or before June 1, 1916.

They must be enclosed in sealed envelopes bearing only the name and address of this Committee.

They must not bear the names of their respective authors.

Each must bear a fictitious name or a distinctive mark.

This fictitious name or distinctive mark must be placed also on the outside of a second envelope.

Within this second envelope must be a sheet of paper bearing the author's name and address, and this second envelope must be sealed and enclosed with the poem, in the envelope, addressed to the Committee.

A competitor may submit two or more poems, but only one prize will be awarded to any author.

The poems will be judged and the prizes awarded by a committee of seven named by this Committee, and the envelopes containing the names of the authors will not be opened until the prizes have been awarded.

The specific subject, the meter and the style of the poems are left entirely to the judgment of their authors. They may be historical, biographical, philosophical or topical in subject matter; they may be serious, humorous or satirical in manner; they may be epic, lyric, or narrative in form. On all these matters are placed no restrictions whatever, and this Committee and the Judges are agreed that the prizes should be awarded with reference primarily to sheer poetic quality. Good poetry, as that phrase is today usually understood by persons of experience in such matters, is what is sought by this Committee and the Judges hope to discover among the contributions submitted, and to this, in so far as it is found, the prizes will be awarded.

The Committee shall have the right to publish from time to time any of the poems submitted, and it shall be the owner of the poems for which prizes have been awarded, together with those which it may have included in its volume entitled "Newark's Anniversary Poems."

The following have accepted the Committee's invitation to serve as judges in this competition

From Newark Hon Frederic Adams, Judge of the Circuit Court, State of New Jersey, Hon. Thos. L. Raymond, Counsellor-at-Law, and Mayor of Newark, Miss Margaret Coult, Head of English Department, Barringer High School, William S Hunt, Associate Editor, Newark Sunday Call

At large. Prof John C Van Dyke Professor History of Art, Rutgers College, Lecturer Columbia, Harvard, Princeton, Author, Editor, College Histories of Art, History of American Art; New Brunswick, New Jersey

Thomas L. Masson (Tom Masson), Literary Editor "Life," Author, Editor Humorous Masterpieces of American Literature

Theodosia Garrison, Author, The Joy of Life and other Poems, Earth Cry and other Poems; Contributor to Magazines.

The prize poems, with a selection from those submitted but not receiving prizes, will probably be published about August 1, 1916, in a volume to be called "Newark's Anniversary Poems."

Suggestions to Poets, if They Wish to Sing of Newark

Newark is not well known Many thousand travelers have gained quite an erroneous view of its character. They pass through it on a train and appraise it by the view they get from a car window as they pass

Newark is old, for an American city, 250 years. This is not to its credit, for Newark's presence on earth has not hastened or retarded the flight of years! Its age is not the cause of its Celebration, but merely the occasion therefor

Newark is large, about 400,000 inhabitants It is not celebrating its size, though its increase of thirty per cent in each of the past six decades suggests that it has had in that period, either an admirable vigor or certain attractive features, or both. Still its size is not the cause of its celebration activities, rather the opportunity therefor

Newark began life as the last project of theocracy in America, and bears the marks of its birth to this day But it does not celebrate for this reason One may, on the contrary, almost venture the thought that it celebrates now its approaching day of freedom from the bonds of theocracy and of fuller enjoyment of the best fruit of that very same theocracy's wise teachings.

Newark is very industrious, but is not entirely industrial

Newark is on the edge of vast stretches of sea-touched marshes, but rests for the most part on certain very admirable hills hills which the hurrying car-window student neither sees nor believes to exist

But Newark is not celebrating her industry, or her high set homes, or any other of the excellences to which in her less modest moments she rather reluctantly confesses

Newark is celebrating in the hope that her people may thereby be led to take note of themselves, to discover that they form a live and active thing, a Modern American City, that this live creature, their city, has its own potencies and powers, and that it can therewith do excellent things for its own people, and that it ought to do them

In a word Newark celebrates, not because it is so excellent a city, but in the hope that it may become much more excellent

Let the poets come, if they kindly will, and prick the tender bubble of our self esteem, and also, if they kindly will, give us something that will stir us so to conduct our city that our self-esteem may at length come to be only a proper pride in civic things well done

A very interesting view of the Celebration is indicated in the following article of Mr. Uzal H McCarter

Common Sense and the Celebration

Nineteen Hundred and Sixteen, the year of the Two Hundred and Fiftieth birthday of the city of Newark, opens most auspiciously for the success of the proposed anniversary celebration. Aside from the war situation abroad, and in some respect because of the conditions there, the coming year is big with promise for this city. It is a year over which there is hovering no ominous cloud, so far as we can now see, and so the Committee of One Hundred, as well as all the citizens of Newark, may turn with undivided minds toward the task of making the forthcoming celebration a success. In connection with that undertaking much has been done, but much more must be done. The celebration is being mapped out on a most comprehensive scale. It involves a vast amount of detail in planning and execution. It calls for hard work and plenty of it; it requires on the part of the committee not only a wide breadth of view, but infinite pains, and it means, so far as the general public is concerned, the exercise not only of faith, but patience.

It is to be expected that in the consummation of all this there will be shortcomings. There must also, of necessity, be some disappointments. It is as certain as anything very well can be, however, that taken as a whole the celebration will be a joy and inspiration to the citizens of the city and that through it, and the wholesome publicity that will arise from it, Newark and its diversified industries will be heralded not only throughout the country but in many places abroad. That in itself will be no small thing, but of greater importance and value to the community will be the development of its civic pride and public spirit which have already been given new life by the committee's plans and which are as certain to grow with the celebration as the sun is to rise and set.

Having before it this inspiring vision of the possibilities and probabilities of the celebration, the committee bespeaks for itself and for its plans the earnest co-operation of the public. It asks for itself the patience of the public when matters seem to lag, and the indulgence of the community if at its imperfect and well meant efforts the committee errs in matters of taste. That patience and that indulgence will be more cheerfully exercised if the difficulties involved in arranging and carrying out the plans of the celebration are considered. Those difficulties are innumerable. It is impossible to anticipate them. To dispose of them all at one time is out of the question. One by one they arise and only as they arise can they be met and overcome.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that all the citizens of Newark will join together to make next May the greatest month in the history of the city. Let each one endeavor to so arrange his or her affairs that during that period he or she may have ample time not only to enjoy the festivities, but to obtain the knowledge and absorb the inspiration that may be offered by its educational features. Above all let everyone believe in the future greatness of the city of Newark and do whatever may lie in his or her power to convert that belief into a certainty.

UZAL H. MCCARTER

In Conclusion

The schedule of events which follows this resume of Newark's anniversary plans, is a fair indication of the quality which it has striven to impart to all it has done in preparation for its Birthday Party.

Newark is essentially a conservative, a solid, a frugal city, not at all given to cutting capers or disporting itself in an inappropriate fashion. It has proceeded in the celebration work on the theory that such preparation itself should be educative of its citizens and predispose them to maintain a lofty ideal of civic responsibility at a time of much rejoicing. I believe it has succeeded admirably in this direction.

When the sun arises on May 1st, the citizens of Newark will instinctively feel a new, a loftier pride in their industrious old city, the largest in New Jersey, the twelfth in size in the United States, ninth in manufactured productivity, with the best schools and the most useful library in the land. Newark's traditions make her worthy of the anniversary she is about to celebrate.
